Without further delay, let's begin. Tips to make a profile Remember, your profile is very important in attracting a potential sugar daddy, so spend time on it and make sure it shows your true personality while still playing professional. Here are some profile tips of the sugar baby you should consider if you are making one. 1. Be yourself The best way to get on the market is to be yourself, keeping integrity and security intact. Be honest in creating your personality. Do not fake your profile and be someone else just to fit someone else's tastes or to impress others. 2. Be honest Being honest, I don't mean you have to use your real names or your personal information. It is understandable that some want to keep these things a secret to their privacy. What we mean is not to pretend you're a doctor if you're a nurse. Don't put false information on yourself. Do not give the impression that you love to travel when you prefer to stay home on weekends. Don't create a world3. Be in advance on what you can offer you to be clear and direct with your expectations and what you can offer. Do you just want casual dating or are you open for sex? Are you ready? Ready?accompany him on his business trips and out of the cities? Are you willing to dress like you want? How many times will you be available for him? Do not be afraid to share these details because these things give a concrete look of who you really are. Sugar poppies love sugar babies, because they don't have time and interest in understanding the things you want. It will be more convenient for both if you are both in advance in what you want in your relationship. 4. Add a clear profile picture or do not use vague images that make a sugar daddy doubt your identity. For example, do not upload photos where you wear sunglasses or be shoot from odd angles. Don't even use group shots. Most of all, avoid making duck faces because it is actually not beautiful and some find stupid. When adding a photo consider at least one light and nonblurred shot. Include a head shot, a full body photo, and a candidate. Most women are not comfortable sharing a full body photo, but not adding one can discourage the interest of potential sugar dads. Make sure to add one only set to private and selectively choose who can see it. Also, if you are involved in any charity or volunteer work, it would be a great opportunity to show it. The best photos are actually the candid ones when you are doing something you are passionate about. 5. Make your profile unique To have a daddy, your profile should stand out. You can only do that by creating a unique profile. For this reason, you have to avoid clichés. Do not use common words like smart or big personality because most are using that at the point that it seems almost generic. Instead, specify your best traits rather than generalize it using blanket statements. Also, include your hobbies orpast time if it is cooking, reading or writing. Mentize your passion and goals. Be brave in declaring the things that will make you different from the rest. 6. Professional stay Yes, you can sayin your profile, but it is better to keep you within the limits of the official language as much as possible. You do not need to declare in your profile that you want a sugar daddy to pay bills or support your studies because it is since sugar dads are generous. Being professional, you focus more on what you can offer and not on what you can get from a potential dad. Remember, you want a sugar daddy to notice you, and the last thing you want is to push them away because of what you wrote in your profile. 7. Do not neglect these details! There are some portions in your profile that you don't have to lose. Here are some of the things you should consider: Username. Choose a username that sounds fun and interesting. If you have a difficult time accomplishing this, there are websites that generate random user names. Maybe you can start there. Heads. As mentioned above, you need to make your profile unique so you choose a voice that will stand out. An SD said that one of the best captivating voices he found was "Welcome home". You can make a voice with this as an inspiration. Personal information. List your favorite interests and hobbies. Also, do not write to impress. It is more effective if you feel as if you need a mentorship from a sugar daddy playing as if you know everything.
